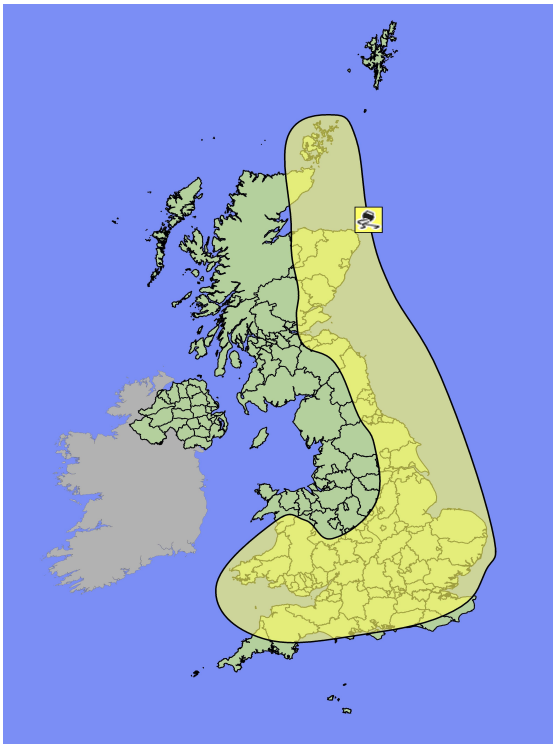
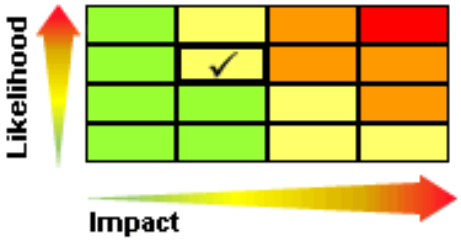
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Another very cold night with locally severe frost (this more likely in the north and east of the yellow area) and a continuing chance of light showers of rain, sleet or snow feeding inland off the sea onto eastern and some southern coasts.. Any further snow flurries will be light but could give a dusting of snow in places which will increase the risk of icy stretches on untreated surfaces.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 00:05 on Thu, 24th Jan 2013 until 11:00 on Thu, 24th Jan 2013

As temperatures fall on Wednesday night, icy stretches will again form on many untreated surfaces especially where new snow has fallen on Wednesday or lying snow refreezes. There may also be a few light snow flurries in places though any new accumulations will be slight.
The public are advised to take extra care.
